TEAR

'Tear gas' is a broad category of substances that make the air spicy, generally used in effort to make a crowd disperse.

- Common effects include:
  - loss of vision, tearing
  - excessive salivation

Chemical irritants categorized as 'tear gas' include:

CN gas, also sold as Mace
The most toxic of the commonly used tear gases, popularity has fallen since the 50s in favor of the perhaps quintessential tear gas: CS GAS

PROTESTERS

Reported lung inflammation, asthma attacks

Tear gas in particular is an equity issue in that, even when the PPB announces they will use tear gas before they release it, they don't leave time for sign language interpreters to relay the message, or for people who cannot run to leave the area; this effectively silences the voices of many people who have a right to make themselves heard.<sup>17</sup>

This is not to mention the numerous injuries PPB inflicts on protesters.

BYSTANDERS

- Tear gas is released downtown with no regard for the safety of houseless people

- Tear gas has impacted nearby drivers<sup>18</sup>

- Tear gas has seeped into residential homes; kids & pets vulnerable<sup>19,20</sup>

- Tear gas or smoke bombs have been released around city buses.

- Multiple members of the press have been arrested at protests; press and legal observers are tear gassed.<sup>21,22</sup>

PANDEMIC

Impacts of tear gas are worsened in the era of COVID-19 because:

- Tear gas causes coughing, a top vector<sup>23</sup>

- Tear gas makes people stop following social distancing guidelines, as they remove masks and justly prioritize taking care of each other.

- Tear gas irritates the respiratory system, possibly increasing susceptibility to COVID-19, and worsening existing cases.<sup>24</sup>

- Droplets propelled by tear gas grenades are approx. size of COVID-19 transmitters.<sup>25,26</sup>
